"The Lesson," inspired by the great commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee"—Ex. 20:12. Particular stress might be consistently put upon this precept, but we betide those who are indifferent to this commandment, for our parents are ministers of God, and those who offer an affront to his minister irritate God. This Biograph subject teaches a most powerful lesson by showing the awful result of final indifference. The Rev. Mr. Hollister, nearing the last mile-stone of life's journey, has but one ardent wish, and that is to see his son, James, wearing the cloth that he must now lay aside on account of his old age.
